

Business Development Manager

Washington, DC

Africare is the first address for specialists and executives in Africa . The focus of its activities is on creating connections between specialists and executives with a desire for professional change and suitable companies. Africare is represented throughout Germany with more than 20 locations.

For our client, a leading technology marketer of semiconductor and network components, we are currently and exclusively looking for a Business Development Manager (m/f/d) for the areas of mobile communications and IT.

Numerous well-known customers have been benefiting from our client's innovative products and services for many years. In addition to standard distribution services, the company also offers customized hardware and software solutions.

If you enjoy working in an international and fast-growing technology environment and if you are happy and motivated to further develop a future-oriented business unit, you should apply directly.

I am looking forward to a personal exchange!

The location: Washington, DC